

Seattle's Big Blog

Covering Seattle news, weather, arts and conversation, along with a grab bag of stuff that's just plain interesting

Seattle's famous fast food, from Ezell's to ... Cinnabon

Iconic foods of Seattle

Forget Seattle's sparkling oysters and seasonal cuisine and artisanal everything. We may be a foodie town, but we've spawned our share of lower-brow, non-gourmet, much-loved grub.

With hometown favorite Ezell's Famous Chicken about to multiply with new franchises, Seattle's rep as a food lover's dream could really grow – for the masses, that is. Think mall snacks, fast food and things old-school and fried that may surprise you with their Seattle-area origins. Here's a look:

(MERYL SCHENKER)

Fish and Chips: With tartar sauce, lemon and ketchup, you've got your four major food groups. The only question: Where's your favorite? Spud's, Sunfish, Iva's or Anthony's? Discuss.

(SCOTT EKLUND / Seattle Post-Intelligencer)

Ivar's: Beloved for its keep clam kitsch, fish and chips and clam chowder. Sharing it with a seagull and view of Puget Sound makes it taste better.

(Joshua Trujillo / Seattle Post-Intelligencer)

Garlic fries at Safeco Field: The smell of garlic on hot Ivar's fries at a Mariners game? Definitely summer in Seattle. Via Toshi Shagbaghlian on Facebook.

<http://blog.seattlepi.com/thebigblog/2013/03/14/seattles-famous-fast-food-from-ezells-to-cinnabon/#5290-1>